Spring has come.

Citizen—Don't see you on the street much lately.
Carson Editor—I'm kept rather busy now getting through that last keg of Klein's Spring Beer. Expect to be out in a few days.

—The London papers that scored Mrs. Potter Brown, are now experiencing a change of sentiment and given her second appearance a better notice. Mrs. Brown's business manager has probably called at the business office, lower floor, second door, and quit giving supper to the theatrical critics. The business manager has shouted up the tube, given orders to the critics what to say, and all goes well.

—Yale students have a "Criminal Club," composed of the students who have been arrested during the term. A receipt for a fine is the certificate of admission. This Club recently held its annual banquet. The toasts were, "The Police, God bless 'em," "The New Haven Station House," "Fines and Forfeitures," and other subjects of a like nature.

—Last night the Vestry of St. Peter's rented the Sunday school room of the Church to Miss Babcock for a Kindergarten, she offering to pay the rent for a year in advance.

—Bomb-thrower Hodges was convicted in San Francisco yesterday.

—Senator Hardesty was in the city yesterday.

—FOR ALE—Pure strain of Langshan and Brown Leghorn eggs. Apply at Geo. McLoughlin's residence.

—FOR SALE—A fine, large residence in the Western part of the city. Terms reasonable. Apply at this office.

—FOUND—A portion of a gold K. of L. emblem. The owner can recover property by calling at this office and paying for this advertisement.

—If feeling old—renew your youthful vigor by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will vitalize the blood, recruit the wasting energies and build up the system.

—Secretary Endicott proposes to sit down on Phil Sheridan. He will find Phil just as hard to sit on as several Southerners found him about 25 years ago.

—WANTED—A suite of two or three furnished rooms near the Capitol, for a gentleman and his wife. Inquire at this office. m15tf —Nevada papers are wildly inquiring what good the Legislature did that State. Well, we suppose they will admit that it adjourned.—Alta.

Thanks for these kind words.

—An eastern actress has struck a new mode of advertising that commends itself. She faints on the stage, says that a disappointed admirer poisoned her, and it is all telegraphed across the continent.

—The railroad men of the country are down with their ears to the rail listening for sounds from Washington, while the man with the glimmering pass is on the wing riding away his last moments of dead-headism.—Chicago Mail.

—A Silver City man has invented a method of shingling roofs by beginning at the top and going down instead of at the eaves. Once when a boy, we started to shingle a roof that way, and the boss carpenter knocked us off our perch with a mallet. The plan didn't work.

—FOR SALE—The desirable residence occupied by J. H. Kinkead, also the dwelling occupied by C. E. Laughton, together with the stable and other outbuildings. This property can be bought very low, for cash. Apply to C. E. Laughton. m16tf —"Facts are stubborn things," and sufferers from chills and fever generally find their complaint a very stubborn fact until they commence the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. That medicine eradicates the noxious poison from the system and invariably cures even the worst cases.

—"Dr." Josselyn, whom every one in San Francisco believes to be responsible for the death of poor Sarah Judd Lawson, has escaped on a technicality. The Courts held that when she made the statement that Josselyn committed the abortion she did not believe she was dying. Josselyn has resumed business at the same stand.

—The undersigned begs to notify the public that he is prepared to execute portraits of all sizes, in oil, crayon, etc., in the most artistic manner, and at prices to suit the times. Everybody is invited to call and examine samples of his work at his studio in Marston's Photograph Gallery.

—Progressive Eucbre.
Dick—Say Charley, did you notice at Mrs. — house last evening, that old Dobson kept turning up a Jack from the bottom.
Charley—Yes, but I didn't kick as I supposed it was progressive eucbre.

THE INTER-STATE COMMISSION.

The New Law Practically Establishes a New Department.

The editor of the APPEAL makes the following extracts from a private letter from Washington regarding the Inter-State Commission:

It is thought the new Commission will organize in this city about the middle of next week. Its members are personally unknown to each other. Four of them were at their homes when the appointments were announced, Mr. Morrison being the only one in Washington. Two of them were taken wholly by surprise and will have to wind up their affairs. The new law goes into effect however by the 4th of April and the Commission can make no delay in preparing for business.

Practically the Capitol will have a new Government Department. The effect of the law upon this city will be more pronounced than that of any that has been enacted in recent years. A large and important bureau will have to be rapidly organized. Thousand of communications, queries, complaints etc., are ready to pour in on the Commission whenever it is ready to receive them. A gentleman well qualified to know, recently told the President that a housefull of such documents are ready for mailing.

Besides adding another extensive bureau to the city of Federal offices, the new law will bring to Washington, legal and other representatives of almost every railroad in the United States and thousands of persons interested in questions brought before the Commission.

Secretary Lamar is called upon to furnish suitable accommodations immediately, for the Commission. There will be a sum of about $50,000 to be expended for clerical and official force which is to be expended in such manner, at such rates and such duties as the Commission sees fit, but subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior.

The railroad men, the producers and customers, the shippers and travelers are all ready and waiting to make life burdensome to the Commissioners and contribute to the activity of the opening season in Washington. With the maintenance of another bureau, and the keeping of a small army of lawyers and railroad men, aggrieved shippers, etc., in the city, there is every prospect that the coming Summer will be a more active one here than we have had for many years.

NEVADA SHOULD ADVERTISE.

While all other new States and Territories are sending forth circulars and pamphlets descriptive of the resources and advantages of their several sections, Nevada ignores herself and as a consequence is being ignored by all others. She should hold up her head even though the seat of her trousers drag the ground—which it is by no means doing. We can make as good a showing in metals of all kinds as any State or Territory on the Pacific Coast, and in agriculture are not far behind the best—as was shown to "all the world and his wife" at the late New Orleans Exposition—while as a grazing State we are alongside the best. Just now, too, the stock growing industry is that which is attracting more attention and capital than almost any other on this side of the Missouri river. Letters of inquiry that have been received by some of our State officials show that in the East the utmost ignorance—indeed the utmost ludicrous ignorance—exists in regard to everything in Nevada. We have no right, however, to laugh at this ignorance, for we have done nothing to dispell it—at least nothing after the position in which other States and Territories are now setting themselves forth.—News Reporter.

Hard to Answer.

The APPEAL received the following on a postal card yesterday: "What would it cost to publish a paper like the Examiner, including press dispatches, compositors, editors, reporters, paper and Carrier. By answering the above you will oblige, A SUBSCRIBER."

This is a hard question to answer. The Examiner people might be able to answer the question, but we are quite certain that they would not. We would say that the least would not be less than $10,000 a month and might be $25,000.

DON'T YOU WORRY.

How Shrewd Business Men Have Solved a Great Problem.

"Is there a fatality among our prominent men?" is a question that we often ask. It is a question that perplexes our leading medical men, and they are at a loss to know how to answer it.

We sometimes think that if the physicians would give part of the energy to the consideration of this question that they give to combating other schools of practice, it might be satisfactorily answered.

The fights of "isms" reminds us often of the quarrels of old Indian tribes, that were only happy when they were annihilating each other.

If Allopathy makes a discovery that promises good to the race, Homoeopathy derides it and breaks down its influence. If Homoeopathy makes a discovery that promises to be a boon to the race, Allopathy attacks it.

It is absurd that these schools should fancy that all of good is in their methods and none in any other. Fortunately for the people, the merit which these "isms" will not recognize, is recognized by the public, and this public recognition, taking the form of a demand upon the medical profession, eventually compels it to recognize it.

Is it possible that the question has been answered by shrewd business men? A prominent man once said to an enquirer, who asked him how he got rich. "I got rich because I did things while other people were thinking about doing them." It seems to us that the public have recognized what this fatality is, and how it can be met, while the medical profession have been wrangling about it.

By a careful examination of insurance reports we find that there has been a sharp reform with reference to examinations, (and that no man can now get any amount of insurance who has the least development of kidney disorder, because they find that sixty out of every hundred in this country do, either directly or indirectly, suffer from kidney disease. Hence, no reliable company will insure a man except after a rigid urinary examination.

This reminds us of a little instance which occurred a short time ago. A fellow editor was an applicant for a respectable amount of insurance. He was rejected on examination, because, unknown to himself, his kidneys were diseased. The shrewd agent, however, did not give up the case. He had an eye to business, and to his commission, and said: "Don't you worry; you get a half-dozen bottles of Warner's safe cure, take it according to directions and in about a month come around, and we will have another examination. I know you will find yourself all right and will get your policy."

The editor expressed surprise at the agent's faith, but the latter replied: "This point is a valuable one. Very many insurance agents all over the country, when they find a customer rejected for this cause, give similar advice, and eventually he gets the insurance."

What are we to infer from such circumstances? Have shrewd insurance men, as well as other shrewd business men, found the secret answer to the enquiry? Is it possible that our columns have been proclaiming, in the form of advertisements, what has proved a blessing in disguise to millions, and yet by many ignored as an advertisement?

In our files we find thousands of strong testimonials for Warner's safe cure, no two alike, which could not exist except upon a basis of truth; indeed, they are published under a guarantee of $5,000 to any one who will disprove their correctness, and this offer has been standing, we are told, for more than four years.

Undoubtedly this article, which is simply dealing out justice, will be considered as an advertisement and be rejected by many as such.

We have not space now time to discuss the proposition that a poor thing could not succeed to the extent that this great remedy has succeeded, could not become so popular without merit even if pushed by a Vanderbilt or an Astor.

Hence we take the liberty of telling our friends that it is a duty that they owe to themselves to investigate the matter and reflect carefully, for the statements published are subject to the refutation of the entire world. None have refuted them; on the contrary hundreds of thousands have believed them and proved them true, and in believing have found the highest measure of satisfaction, that which money cannot buy, and money cannot take away.

What to Invest In.

The Lyon County Times says: It is our private opinion, publicly expressed, that a person with money to invest might a great deal better buy tailings with it, than stocks. It will not be a great while before all the low, as well as high grade tailings, in this State will be worth considerable money, from the fact that a process has now been found by which they can be worked, and nearly all the bullion in them secured. But a short time will elapse before Dr. Rea's electrical process will be in use in all the mills in the State. There is yet an immense quantity of tailings scattered around in small lots in the State, and it appears to us that a man with capital could make many much worse investments.
